

Monthly Newsletter – April 2013

Spring has sprung and summer will soon be upon us here in the USA! That means the insects and all sorts of other flying creatures as well! So it's time to prepare in order to have protection in place for our animals against various bites, irritations and the unwanted appearances of winged or crawling "critters."

There are all sorts of measures which can be undertaken to combat the actions of undesirable insects and diminish their impact. These include, of course, the required hygiene which needs to be maintained constantly in the stables and on farms, but also the stocking up of products which prevent insects from operating and settling in as well as those which actively eliminate. Among those products which are useful for prevention as well as elimination are:

- Protective masks and other protective coverings for horses against insects (fly masks & protective fly sheets);
- Products whether natural or not which repel insects ( fly repellent);
- Products which kill, eliminate insects (insecticides);
- Other products which eliminate insect larva and fly and insect traps.

Here is a selection of some of the better products for prevention and elimination of insects:
