

Monthly Newsletter – September 2012

Autumn is upon us! Days are cool and nights almost cold as colored leaves dry and fall to the ground. Concerns about mosquitoes and other insects recede. Many types of animals are now less bothered by insect bites and more comfortable in their stables or pastures. Protection from insects and other scrapes and wounds -so common in summer or on racetracks is, however, still needed for horses and other animals. The need for treatment of anti-bacterial, anti-fungal wounds and cuts remains.

To assist you in providing this treatment and protection, we begin this month a series of two articles on the appropriate products to care for 1) cuts and wounds 2) scratches 3) skin rashes, irritations, infections 4) fungus and 5) hoof problems.
